

Family Readiness Gap Check

Twelve questions. About four minutes. Answer for your household as it is tonight - not as you wish it were.

PEOPLE

- 1. If you were unreachable tonight, would someone know the first person to call?
- 2. Is there a named backup if that first person does not answer?
- 3. Would someone know who handles children, dependents, or pets in the first hour?

DOCUMENTS

- 4. Could someone find where the signed will (if you have one) is physically kept?
- 5. Could someone find your power of attorney or healthcare directive - or confirm you do not have one yet?
- 6. Is there a single written list of where the important originals live (not the documents themselves - the locations)?

ACCESS

- 7. Does at least one trusted person know where the binder or files would be?
- 8. Have you written down who may know what, and when (now / later / never) - even roughly?
- 9. Is there a clear pointer to the separate place where passwords and PINs actually live? (Not the passwords themselves.)

MONEY & CARE

- 10. Could someone identify your primary bank or credit union by name without digging through mail for an hour?
- 11. Could someone find insurance contacts (health, home, or auto - whichever you carry) by name or phone?
- 12. Is there a note for life-critical medication or care instructions a helper would need in the first night?

Your family would find _____ of 12 things tonight.

0-3 Most of the first-hour basics are still in someone's head. A short first pass would change that.

This is a diagnostic, not a sample chapter. Pointers only - never passwords, PINs, or account numbers. Not legal, medical, or financial advice.
